Hi team AEC,

Today Google has announced that referendum related advertising is being scoped into our political ads policy, meaning anyone running referendum related advertising will need to have their advertising account/s verified, and their ads will appear in our political ads transparency report.

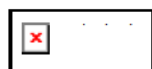

Also wanted to check in if any resources regarding the below might be available as yet? We did see the launch of the new disinfo register and have already passed it on to our Trust and Safety colleagues as one of the authoritative sources they should rely on for the purpose of applying our election misinformation policy.

From our end, I can confirm that the AEC will;

- 1. Providing you with a letter outlining the regularly environment once legislation has passed Parliament. This letter will provide you with the most accurate information concerning the referendum process.*
- 2. Provide updates on our referendum education resources as they are made available. This will include a number of videos and a referendum specific Disinformation Register (please find a link to the 2022 Federal Election register here). Once live, the Register will be regularly updated with common pieces of disinformation we are encountering.*

Cheers,

Hi Section 47F,

Many thanks for sharing this information, the Advanced Protection Program will certainly be of interest to the broader AEC and our interactions with various stakeholders.

Section 47F has already reached out as well to provide us with further information on YouTube's Trusted Flagger program and we greatly appreciate both of your efforts to provide us with this information so promptly.

Apologies but I don't seem to have the escalation path attachment and the 2022 federal election escalation pathways I have on file don't appear to include Section 47F emergency number. When you have an opportunity, if you could forward this through again that would be much appreciated.

We appreciate your consideration of the referendum environment as you commence testing Bard on what I'm sure is a very exciting day for you and your colleagues!

Hi Section 47F

Great to see you yesterday and hear more from the AEC about plans for the upcoming referendum. Please see attached escalation paths (which applied to the election last year and will also apply to the referendum). You'll see that slide 2 includes both email addresses and Section 47F phone number for emergency / out of hours issues.

Here is a website with more information about the Advanced Protection Program, which is offered to individuals at high risk of being targeted by bad actors; please note that these tools can only be used across Google services (Gmail, Drive etc). So they are really only relevant for people who are using these services for sharing sensitive information (which would be worthy of being targeted). We talk about this program in our civics training, which is delivered to political parties as well as individual elected representatives who take us up on the offer of training.

Finally, I promised to send through more information about our AI announcements last week. The blog post links off to a number of other resources that should hopefully answer any questions you have. I will note that all Google employees have today been given access to Bard and therefore we will start testing it locally in the context of referendum questions and start providing feedback. We'll keep you posted when we have a clearer sense of when Bard might be made more widely available.

Kind regards

Hi Section 47F

Wonderful to meet you yesterday and very much looking forward to collaborating in the lead up to the referendum.

Shortly I'll be sending through a follow up email to the Google team confirming a few action items from yesterday's meeting – apologies for the slight delay on this!

Thanks for your offer to share your phone number, unfortunately I'm having a little trouble locating it so I'd be grateful if you could share it with me again? As I'll be your main point of contact for the AEC, I also wanted to pass on mine, Section 47F, please feel free to call or email with any questions or concerns, always very happy to help and get you the best information possible.

For emails that are of significance or urgent, I'd recommend either sending them to or CCing in EIAT@aec.gov.au so others in the Defending Democracy Unit (DDU) can assist if I'm unavailable.

Looking forward to speaking with you more over the coming months.
