Mr Jeff Pope APM
Acting Electoral Commissioner
Australian Electoral Commissioner

Dear Acting Commissioner,

Thank you for the Australian Electoral Commission's (AEC's) ongoing engagement with TikTok and for recently joining the platform to reach over 9.5 million Australian users.

We are protecting the integrity of our platform during the upcoming Australian Federal election, including removing content that violates our strict Community Guidelines and supporting civic and electoral integrity. As emphasised in our recent direct engagement with the Australian Electoral Commission, including members of the Electoral Integrity Taskforce, we continue to invest in our Trust & Safety function, maintain our fact-checking infrastructure, including in Australia, and treat Federal elections with the seriousness they warrant, noting many of the global concerns you raise.

As part of this ongoing work, in 2024 we updated our Civic and Election Integrity policies to provide greater clarity around protections for election workers, or observers, who might face intimidation or harassment in the course of these critical events. We also continue to refine our AI-Generated Content (AIGC) policies to respond to emerging trends and threats. These policies now require users to label AIGC content, using in-app features, and we also apply auto-labelling ourselves. We recognise that even when appropriately labelled, AIGC and edited media may still be harmful. We do not allow content that shares or shows fake authoritative sources or crisis events, or falsely shows public figures in certain contexts including being bullied, making an endorsement, or being endorsed. In these instances, we will remove the violative content through proactive moderation, user reports, and reports as escalated by the AEC.

Noting the global threat landscape, including around elections, in 2024 we also expanded our state-affiliated media policies to further address state-affiliated media accounts that attempt to reach communities outside their home country on current global events and affairs. When we identify these accounts, they will become ineligible for recommendation, which means their content won't appear in the For You feed - the primary way TikTok users discover content. In addition, if these accounts advertise on our platform, they will not be allowed to advertise outside of the country with which they are primarily affiliated. Importantly, in relation to Covert Influence Operations, in 2024, we also introduced monthly public reporting, which we publish on our Transparency Centre.¹ These reports disclose the detection source, the target location(s) of such operations, the number of accounts in a network, and the number of followers those accounts might have had. We leverage our global team's expertise and insights in relation to any potential threats in Australia and, where we detect these, we disclose them.

For the upcoming federal election in Australia, TikTok has established a dedicated core working group to assess and respond to reports we receive from the AEC, ensure moderation systems are up-to-date, and adapt to unfolding events as they might emerge during the electoral period (including content related trends, whether concerning AICG or other types of content).

We have taken specific actions to support the safety and integrity of the 2025 Federal Election, including:

1. Upholding our prohibition on paid political advertising on-platform. This includes both traditional paid advertisements and creators receiving compensation to support or oppose a candidate.
2. Maintaining an active TikTok reporting portal access for the AEC to report content of concern.
3. Providing re-direction, in-app, to authoritative election-related information for content concerning the federal election, including linking to the AEC's website and TikTok account.
4. Conducting impersonation sweeps for accounts that are verified as belonging to Australian political candidates, including existing elected Members and Senators, with appropriate enforcement action taken as a result.
5. Issuing policy guidance specific to the election for our moderation system, including guidance that covers AICG.
6. Establishing a pathway for communication with other government agencies, including as it concerns the safety of Members of Parliament, to enable a timely response to issues that may arise in the Australian community during the electoral period.

We are happy to clarify any of these matters via further discussion with the AEC, and we look forward to working alongside the AEC to ensure a safe 2025 Federal Election on TikTok.

Yours sincerely,

s 47F

Categories: s 47F

Good morning s 47F

Ahead of our meeting today at 1pm , I just wanted to give you the heads up about a couple of questions the EIAT TF Chair, Matt Haigh, will ask you over the course of the update from the AEC/EIAT.

- What are some of the positive ways TikTok has been used during an election? (For example, community education campaigns, encouraging people to enrol and to vote. We note some reputable sources such as the ABC have posted 'How To Vote' videos.)
- Does the TikTok algorithm give priority to authoritative sources of information about an election? For example, AEC, ABC and other authoritative sources of information.
- Does TikTok have any election specific filters (noting Snap has something, but this may work differently on TikTok)
- Have referral pathways changed since the 2023 referendum?
- Have there been any changes to TikTok's processes or referral pathways for legal referrals?
- We're aware that the use of AI to enable the spread of mis and disinformation remains an existential challenge for everyone in the online environment, including TikTok. Given reports of AI enabled misinformation on TikTok (Network of TikTok accounts using AI to spread political misinformation, report finds | Mashable , TikTok Content Farms Use AI Voiceovers to Mass-Produce Political Misinformation - NewsGuard) during last year's elections:
 - What did TikTok learn from this and has this been the catalyst for any changes?
 - What guardrails will TikTok have in place for the Australian election?

I trust most of these will be pretty straight forward but wanted to give you a bit of advance notice. Apologies its arriving on the day of the meeting but I had to take some unforeseen leave last week.

Please let me know if you any question or would like any further context. Otherwise, we will see you at 1pm.

Hi there

Thanks so much for your email, we'd be happy to meet with you all. But we do have some restrained availability over the few weeks, and teams based in Singapore so later in the day is preferred for us.

If it's possible to push the meeting until the second last week of September? Alternatively, the week starting 8 October would be easier again for us.

Does your team have availability then?

Good morning s 47F

We hope this email finds you well.

As you would be aware, the AEC is preparing for the next federal election (FE24/25); while the date is yet to be determined by government, it could be called at any time with the latest date for it to be held being in May 2025. We would therefore like to arrange a meeting with you (and/or appropriate representatives as you see fit) in preparation.

Given you will likely be quite busy in the lead up to the US Presidential election on 5 November, we would like to propose a meeting this month.

At this meeting we would be interested in covering:

- an update from the AEC on Australia's electoral integrity environment
- an update from TikTok about your observations and lessons learned from recent elections around the globe and how these experiences are shaping your work

- how TikTok are responding to electoral integrity risks, with a particular focus on how we can ensure the Australian public has access to timely and accurate information about the electoral process
- confirming the options and/or escalation pathways for the EIAT and the AEC to flag potential issues with TikTok in relation to Australian federal electoral events
- discuss the (FE24/25) version of the Online Platform Scenarios, which, although similar to the Referendum scenarios, has had some updates

Grateful if you could please advise which (if any) of the following dates would be suitable for a September meeting.

We would be aiming for a one-hour window within the following times.

Tuesday, 17 September 8am to 9.30am

Wednesday, 18 September 8am to 10am

Thursday, 19 September 8am to 9.30am

Friday, 20 September 8am to 9.30am

Very happy to discuss further if needed.

Hi team

As discussed on our recent call, please find below the copy we propose including in our in-app election hub. It's intended to be simple and refer users to the AEC for authoritative information.

If you were able to please review the copy, and provide any feedback? It is very similar to the 2022 hub that we partnered on, so hoping this should be a relatively straight forward review. Also chasing the best resource for the last category in the copy, I reviewed your website today but couldn't see a neat page for the final category to link to.

Stop and consider

During an election, people or groups may try to influence the way you vote.

Stop and consider what you're seeing, hearing or reading. Check multiple sources of information, particularly if you're not sure of the information's authenticity. Ways to vote

Australia has some of the best voting options in the world.

If you can vote on election day, then that is what you should do. If you can't make it on election day you can vote during the two-week early voting period – either in-person or via post. Plan your vote according to your circumstances.

- Election day: in your local area or at dedicated interstate voting centres.
- Pre-polling: in-person at an early voting centre - anywhere around Australia or at an overseas voting centre
- Mobile voting: via a mobile voting team visiting remote communities, residential care facilities, some hospitals and a range of other locations of need.
- Postal voting: if you can't make it to a voting centre

Preferential voting

Voting in the federal election is compulsory for all Australian citizens aged 18+ on the electoral roll. Know how the Australian preferential voting system works before you head to a voting centre
